Rescue team searches Utah Lake for the bodies of Boyd C. Rosenlund and Bryan G. Terry, who drowned in separate incidents in November. Rosenlund's body was found Nov. 22, but Terry's body was not recovered until last week, when it was spotted near the south end of the lake.

Body of missing Utah man found in south end of lake during helicopter test flight

The body of a Utah County man who has been missing since last November was found near the south end of Utah Lake on Friday afternoon. According to officials, the body of Dr. Bryan Terry, 36, was spotted by a pilot and a Utah County Sheriff's deputy during a helicopter test flight Friday afternoon. The body was found near LeBaron Point, north of Genola, an area close to the site where Terry was first reported missing. Lt. Gary Clayton (of the sheriff's office) called the body as he could go up with us in a helicopter," said Don Andrews, vice president of operations for Rocky Mountain Helicopters, Inc. "Since the weather has been warming up, he figured there was a better chance that they could find the body," Andrews said. "I told him we had a couple of test flights going up, and he was welcome to come along," he said. The pilot, Larry Jones, said he spotted something that looked like "a little kid" and flew closer to investigate. It was only after getting closer to the body that Jones realized the corpse was that of a full-grown man. The body was later determined to be the body of Terry. Utah County Search and Rescue teams tried to recover the body from the water using boats and frogmen, Andrews said. "They weren't able to reach the body because of the ice that was still on the lake," he said. The body was later recovered by helicopter.

Duarte claims lead in Salvadoran vote

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Christian Democratic candidate Jose Napoleon Duarte claimed a substantial lead Monday in presidential elections disrupted by confusion over voting rules and guerrilla attacks.

The Central Election Commission did not immediately announce any official returns of the election Sunday, and final results were not expected until Wednesday. But Duarte's Christian Democrats announced an unofficial tally of half the vote that gave their liberal candidate a substantial lead over his main rivals — Roberto d'Aubuisson of the far-right Nationalist Republican Alliance and Francisco Jose Guerrero of the Conservative National Conciliation Party.

There were eight candidates in the race and if none of them wins more than 50 percent of the vote, a run-off between the two leaders will be held, probably in May. In Washington, President Reagan praised Salvadoran forces for braving rebel violence and sabotage to vote and said the turnout at the polls for the presidential election was "a victory for freedom over tyranny."

Reagan told a White House Medal of Freedom ceremony that he had been in touch with members of the Congress who observed Sunday's voting in El Salvador and reported their "complete enthusiasm (about) the heroism . . . of these people who, in spite of everything, insisted on going to vote."

The elections were considered crucial to Reagan's program of military and economic support for the Salvadoran government in its four-year war against a leftist guerrilla insurgency.

American congressional observers said the elections had been successful despite wide-spread confusion over rules requiring voters to cast ballots only at a particular booth corresponding to their national identification card.

"These elections have demonstrated convincingly, without a doubt, that the people of El Salvador want freedom," said House Democratic Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Tex.

Wright, speaking at a news conference before departing for Washington, said he believed El Salvador needs the $93 million in increased military aid that the Reagan Administration is seeking. "I think it would be foolhardy to deny the reasonable amount of assistance which has been requested," said Wright, co-leader of the 30-member official U.S. observer delegation.

Wright said it appeared that 70 percent of all eligible voters, about 1.3 million people, were able to vote — a turnout he described as "highly acceptable." Voting is mandatory in El Salvador.

Christian Democratic Party Secretary General Julio Adolfo Ray Prendes said that with 50 percent of the votes counted, Duarte garnered 855,655 votes compared to 216,132 for d'Aubuisson and 130,694 for Guerrero.

Ray Prendes said five minor parties were drawing few enough votes that Duarte's majority could hold up, avoiding a run off with the number two contender, currently d'Aubuisson.

The Christian Democrats compiled their statistics by party activists telephoning results into party headquarters following counts at the local boxes, party officials said.

Tax election uncertain Alpine district waits for legislative decision

By CYNTHIA ANDERSON
Staff Writer

A proposed tax leeway election for the Alpine School District may be postponed because of a recent Utah Supreme Court decision cancelling property tax rollbacks.

"The prospect of higher taxes as a result of the court's decision casts a shadow over the upcoming leeway election for the Alpine District," said Dr. Clark Cox, district superintendent.

The Alpine Board of Education announced plans several weeks ago to sponsor a leeway election that would ask voters to increase property taxes by two or five mills. The election is scheduled for May 8, and according to Michael Robinson, district public relations director, there are no current plans to change the date.

The board charged a committee of members of the Alpine District Public Involvement Council with the responsibility of designing materials to educate the public at its last public meeting. The committee, comprised of citizen volunteers, had already begun its task when Cox announced his recommendation that all those involved in the leeway adopt "a finding pattern" until after the emergency meeting of the state legislature this week.

Cox said he hopes the legislature will find a way to eliminate the tax increase by reducing mill levies or other means. Meanwhile, he has recommended that the board reconsider decisions about the election at the April 10 business meeting, since the legislature's actions should be determined at that time.

The ballot for the election proposes two possible increases. The first would be an increase of two mills, or a $2 increase in property taxes for every $1,000 of assessed valuation.

The state would match the funds generated by this proposal, bringing the district a total of $1,232,424. The money would be used to reduce textbook fees, to provide money for building maintenance and for instructional improvement. These are all needs the district considers "desperate."

The second proposal would increase taxes by five mills, and the money from the additional three mills would be spent to provide specialists in elementary schools, instructional aides and more competitive salaries for personnel.

The two mill increase would cost the owner of a $60,000 home an additional $18 per year.

Trouble plagues Boy George at Y

By LAURA CHILDERS
Senior Reporter

Boy George and his rock group Culture Club are in trouble at BYU again. This time their albums have been taken out of the music shop in the Bookstore while officials review to determine whether they are appropriate for sale to students.

According to Roger Utley, book-director, the group's lead singer, Boy George, is being evaluated for the group's music. "It is more a situation of the artist than of his music. When you sell one, you sell the rest."

Other artists are in danger of having their albums taken out of the shop at this time, he said, but are groups such as AC/DC and whose music is not sold in the store, "simply because of their image, which we do not feel is appropriate."

Utley said he does not know a great deal about Culture Club, but was asked to remove the albums because of recent action taken by student program officials in connection with the group.

Former ASBYU Culture Office director Ruth Terri planned to use Culture Club as a theme for her campaign during last week's elections. She planned to use for her campaign a photograph of her posing with a group of people dressed similar to Culture Club members.

Don Thomas, director of student programs, informed Terri she would delete the photograph from her poster because he felt Culture Club promoted homosexuality and transvestism.

Club promoted homosexuality and transvestism. "Surely Boy George is a well-recognized symbol of (transvestism)," Thomas said. "The reference is to a culture that is not a normal culture."

Terri disagreed with Thomas, saying "My campaign was intended as a light-hearted parody of this band and was not meant to spark immoral thoughts or activity."

The Culture Club image suffered another setback about two weeks ago after a group of students initiating Boy George and his gang were told they could not perform on campus again.

The air-band, mouthing words to Culture Club songs, performed at Concerts Improvisati on March 16, and were told afterward by Bob Thornock, coordinator of student councils and organizations, that they were never to perform on campus again.

Thornock's disapproval of the group was based on his belief that the group promotes homosexuality and transvestism.

"We don't do it to advocate or portray homosexuality or anything else. We do it for fun," said Ray Carter, a junior from San Diego, Calif., majoring in broadcast journalism, who portrays "Guy George," the air-band's leader.

News of BYU's Culture Club controversy has received attention by the Salt Lake City television stations and newspapers and may soon be featured nationally, since according to Carter, ABC News has questioned him about the situation.

Rob Miller and Steve Colton, newly-elected ASBYU president and vice president, celebrate as they hear election results. Two former vice presidential candidates have filed complaints against the Elections Committee and are calling for a recount of the final ballots and a re-election. The ASBYU Supreme Court is expected to act upon the complaints soon, said Clay Jackson, assistant attorney general.

ASBYU candidates complain

Complaints against the ASBYU Elections Committee have been filed by two former candidates who Monday called for a recount of the final ballots and re-elections for ASBYU Academics and Finance offices.

Two complaints were filed by Gary Odgen, finalist for the academics office, and three complaints were filed by Edward Shephardson, finalist for finance office.

Odgen is contesting the ballot sheets in the final elections had Park's name or letter circled, said Clay Jackson, assistant attorney general for elections. "Odgen feels this action swayed the 20 votes he lost by. If this is the case, there is a possibility we could be having a re-election."

Jackson added, "According to the elections bylaws, if a candidate loses an election by less than one-half percent of the total votes for that office, any candidate or campaign manager may order a recount."

Shephardson is asking for both a recount and a re-election. According to Jackson, "The ballots were written in a manner that could have biased the voters by having Dee Conger's name listed first and not rotating it with Shephardson's name." The bylaws provide recourse for candidates when voting procedures are in question, he added.

Odgen is not only questioning the balloting procedure, but is also asking for a hand count of the votes, said Jackson. According to the results of the elections, the computer threw out some 800 ballots for technical reasons.

"All Shephardson needed was 18 of those votes to win the election. Unfortunately, before we can conduct a recount, we must have the approval of the Supreme Court," said Jackson.

A third complaint filed by Odgen was in reference to a picture in The Daily Universe. Odgen said, "The Daily Universe had a picture of Conger at the student body debate with a caption that included his name. That publicity could have biased the elections in favor of Conger."

According to Jackson, the ASBYU Supreme Court will act upon the complaints as soon as possible.

Mondale, Hart crusade for votes in Northeast

(UPI) — Gary Hart and Walter Mondale sought liberal votes in New York and Connecticut on Monday, with Hart saying the former vice president's Central America policy reminds him of Vietnam and Mondale calling his rival weak on the issue of a nuclear freeze.

The two front-runners both began their day in the Empire State, where a major primary showdown is coming up April 3, then joined civil rights activist Jesse Jackson on the campaign trail in Connecticut to make final appearances before Tuesday's election there.

Hart is favored in Connecticut and a poll published Sunday in the Hartford Courant and taken last week by the University of Connecticut showed the senator from Colorado with 48 percent in the state, Mondale with 28 percent, Jackson with 5 percent and 19 percent undecided.

A victory in Connecticut would end a two-week dry spell in primary contests for Hart and give him a sweep of all six New England states in primaries and caucuses this year.

Volcano eruption sends lava flow toward prison

VOLCANO, Hawaii (UPI) — Curtains of lava shot up to 150 feet Monday from the Mauna Loa volcano, sending a fiery glow beating down on a minimum security prison, Hawaii Island Civil Defense officials said.

The 55 staff and trustee inmates at the facility prepared to be moved to a tent city miles away from the threatened prison.

Scientists and CD men maintained a close watch on the flow gushing from the flanks of the world's largest active volcano.

At the same time, another river of molten rock was threatening to slice across a major road linking the island's east and north coasts.

U.S. Geological Survey scientist Tina Neal said

Monday the flows were fed by curtains of lava shooting up to 150 feet high from a one-mile stretch of vents at the 9,000-foot level of the volcano.

The flows were moving about one mph, she said.

Rivals in Beirut refrain from grabbing territory

Beirut, Lebanon (UPI) — Rival Moslem and Christian militias agreed Monday to refrain from grabbing territory vacated by departing French peace-keepers, and France was reported ready to deploy cease-fire observers in Beirut.

State-run Beirut Radio said French Ambassador Fernand Wibaux met with representatives of the country's main warring parties and reiterated his country's willingness to send observers to monitor a cease-fire in Beirut.

The independent International News Agency quoted diplomatic sources saying 40 observers would be in position in Beirut on Wednesday.

But despite signs of progress, new fighting broke out along the Green Line dividing Christian east Beirut from the Moslem west.

Shells falling into residential neighborhoods killed at least five people and wounded 17, security sources said.

Convicted gang rapists given prison sentences

FALL RIVER, Mass. (UPI) — Four men were ordered Monday to spend up to 12 years in state prison for their convictions in an emotional barroom gang rape trial that sparked a national debate over the rights of rape victims.

Daniel Silva, 27, John Cordeiro, 24, and Victor Raposo, 23, were sentenced to nine-to-12-year terms at Walpole State Prison for their role in the March 6, 1983, assault on a 22-year-old woman at Big Dan's Tavern in New Bedford. Joseph Vieira, 28, was ordered to spend six to eight years in prison.

Burglary suspect pleads not guilty to forgery charge

A Provo man arrested in connection with burglaries at the BYU testing center entered a plea of not guilty in arraignment proceedings Friday.

Brent W. Tenney, 19, of 3677 N. 600 East, was arrested by University Police on Wednesday. During the arraignment, Tenney was charged with one count of forgery. Other other charges of theft and forgery are pending, said Chief Robert Kelshaw of the University Police.

More than $1,500 in stolen property was taken from the testing center in a period of about 1½ weeks beginning March 12. Most of the stolen property has been recovered except for some calculators, said Kelshaw.

An indepth background study is being conducted on Tenney, Kelshaw said. The Adult Probation and Parole Office is also conducting an investigation and will counsel the Utah County Attorney's Office on what should be done.

Tenney has been ordered to be held at the Utah County Jail without bail pending a preliminary hearing in Provo 8th Circuit Court, which has been scheduled for April 2 at 4 p.m.

Eight good reasons why you should consider Ther-Max for summer employment.

Ken Jensen  Business Administration - BYU Going with Ther-Max was probably one of the most difficult steps I ever took. It was even more scary for my wife, but she trusted me. She knew that if I really believed in it we could do it. It was a gold mine! I figured it was so good that there was no way we could fail. Now my wife thinks it's great! Because of this job we have a new car, stereo, TV and everything else most couples only dream of having this early in their marriage.	Thomas Maxwell  Secondary Education - BYU I changed my mind five times before I decided to work for Ther-Max. With a wife and child and another baby due, it was a difficult decision to make. I had many questions and I must admit that I was very skeptical. But the individual who recruited me was an honest person and I believed him. I have had to work and attend school full-time for the past two years. Now, after working for Ther-Max, I can come home after my classes and be with my family.	Scott McKinley  International Relations - BYU As one of the married employees of Ther-Max, I feel I have had a little bit of an advantage. My wife really helped motivate me to achieve my goals. I'd say, "Hey, I think this month I'll earn a microwave oven for us." She'd get excited and say, "All right!" And the company trip to Tahiti? It was definite! Her support has definitely been a positive factor. It was just the job I was looking for, one that could earn me enough money during the summer so I wouldn't have to work while attending school.	Troy Horton  Business Administration - BYU I'm only sorry I didn't get into Ther-Max corporation at the beginning of the summer. I was selling cars for the 4th largest Honda dealership in So. California. A personal friend told me he thought I could do even better with Ther-Max corp. so I decided to give it a try. Working only the last 7 weeks of the summer, I earned over $5,000 in up front commissions. The year my expectations are even greater.
Scott Swenson  Computer Science - BYU As I look back on it, I must have been pretty brave to go with Ther-Max because I was getting married in two weeks and I didn't have much money. But when I heard there was a job where it was possible to make in excess of $1,000 in one summer, that seemed ideal for me. I didn't know a job like that existed.	John Van Wagener  Pre Med - BYU I've worked for Ther-Max for four years now, and have benefited immensely from the experience. The opportunity to earn as much as I wanted has been great, as well as the self-confidence I've gained and the management experience I've had. I feel the management opportunities available with Ther-Max can add a positive factor to everyone's resume.	Eric Haas  Graduate - BYU Three years ago, when I first became aware of Ther-Max, it sounded too good to be true. Now, two years after my graduation from BYU, I am still working for Ther-Max. Not only am I earning twice the amount of money my fellow graduating classmates earn, but I have learned to use many skills I never would've developed elsewhere.	Tim Payne  Zoology - BYU You might say that fate thrust us into Ther-Max. We were lucky because I probably would have never tried the job if another had exsited in this area. When we heard of the unreal amount of money made with Ther-Max, we were skeptical, but after the first three paychecks, averaging $300 a week, we weren't skeptical anymore!

Ag Week opens with animal show

By ANNE AKERS
Staff Writer

Wide-eyed elementary school children gently petting cows, pigs and other animals marks the start of BYU's annual Agriculture Week today.

Ag Week will be filled with a variety of events and activities, said Dr. Laren Robison, director of the Ezra Taft Benson Agriculture and Food Institute.

"The reason we have Ag Week is because we have somewhat of an image problem right here on our own campus. Just because people think a private institution is more of a liberal arts, physical science institution, they are surprised when they find out agriculture classes are taught here," Robison said.

"Agriculture is one of the oldest departments here, but because BYU is a private institution we do not have the visibility, out in the world, that land-grant institutions have.

"So we hold Ag Week as a showcase for agriculture to our own student community as a means of publicity to the community outside BYU and as a means of inviting guest speakers to participate in our guest symposium," Robison added.

Displays and exhibits representing the College of Biology and Agriculture will be in the ELWC Garden Court along with a baked goods display until Friday.

One of the highlights of the week will be the cow-milking contest, which will include Cosmo, Miss Utah; Sharlene Wells, Miss BYU; George Pace, a BYU religion teacher; Chris Nikchevich, a BYU basketball player; and Dean Smith, dean of the College of Agriculture and Biology, as some of the contestants.

Utah Gov. Scott Matheson will speak at the college's award and recognition banquet in the ELWC Ballroom on Thursday at 6 p.m.

An Ag Week Symposium will be Thursday in the Varsity Theater. At 9 a.m., Dr. Luther G. Tweeten of Oklahoma State University will speak on "Food for People and Profit: The Ethics of a Capitalist Food System." Dr. H. Paul Rasmussen of Washington State University will speak on "The Scientific Challenge Tomorrow" at 10 a.m.

Dr. George E. Seidel Jr. of Colorado State University will speak on "New Frontiers in Genetic Engineering" at 11 a.m.

At 1 p.m., Dr. Rodney K. Heitschmidt of Texas A&M University will speak on "Intensive Rangeland Grazing Systems: The Pros and Cons."

Elder Ted E. Brewerton, a member of the First Quorum of the Seventy of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, speaks to students and the public at Sunday's fireside. He said everyone needs to have on-going spiritual guidance to help in making decisions.

On-going guidance necessary, Elder Brewerton says at fireside

By ANNE AKERS
Staff Writer

People need on-going guidance, Elder Ted E. Brewerton, a member of the First Quorum of the Seventy of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, speaking at a 14-Stake Fireside on Sunday, said. Elder Brewerton told students that they have constant decisions to make, and as independent as they are from the world, they are dependent upon God. Guidance comes through revelation and revelation has always characterized the true church of Christ, Brewerton added.

quoting Elder Howard W. Hunter, saying, "Some have attempted to find the origin and operation of the Church without acknowledging the principle of revelation. That is like trying to explain the operation of a car without mentioning the fact that the vehicle has an engine. To attempt to account for the rise and progress of this church on any basis other than revelation will prove to be naive."

Elder Brewerton said revelation comes in three ways — a voice, an actual visit of an angel or manifestations of the Holy Ghost.

He quoted the late President Joseph Fielding Smith, who said in a 1958 address that manifestations of the Holy Ghost are more everlasting than the visit of an angel.

President Smith added, "The impression on the soul that comes from the Holy Ghost is far more significant than a vision."

Elder Brewerton related the story of a 20-year-old man who was run over by a train and killed. Fifteen days later, the man came to his mother in a dream and told her various things to comfort her. He had wanted to go to his father, but his father was very busy with various assignments and not in a receptive frame of mind. However, his mother had placed herself in a meditative mood and she was in the position to receive the visitation of her son. "We should always strive to be pure in our thoughts and actions," Elder Brewerton added.

All students have to do is open the topical index or guide and they can become an expert in all doctrines, Elder Brewerton said.

"We must first have the desire to put forth effort, fast, pray, thirst, search, meditate and yearn with faith."

Elder Brewerton said that an article found in a Baptist newsletter stated that LDS Church members are putting Baptists to shame in zeal and growth and hat, although they have a relatively short history, they are growing faster than any other religious group in America.

At 8 p.m. in 2084 JKHB, the speaker will be Edwin Firmage, president of Utahns United Against the Nuclear Arms Race, "The Nuclear Arms Race: A Christian Response."

Friday, At 9:10 a.m. in 321 ELWC, Dr. Martin B. Hickman, dean of the College of Family, Home and Social Sciences, will speak on "The Arms Race: A Mirror Image."

At 2:10 p.m., a panel discussion will be presented on "How to Promote Peace in the Face of the Nuclear Arms Dilemma" with Dr. Cheryl May, an assistant professor of political science; Maj. Paul Anderson of Aerospace Studies; and Dr. Eugene England, an associate professor of English.

Missing victim sought in bicycle accident

Provo police are looking for a bicyclist involved in a hit-and-run accident at 550 W. University Parkway on March 19.

The accident occurred at 11:15 a.m., said Sgt. V. Ben Porter, a Provo traffic coordinator.

Police received an anonymous tip on the hit-and-run driver, who was driving a blue car.

Lice outbreak under control

An outbreak of head lice in the Nebo School District has been controlled, officials said Monday.

Idona Holman, director of nursing, said there have been no problems for quite a while.

"We had a problem earlier. We confined it, brought it under control," she said.

Fighting Irish, Wolverines to vie for NIT top honors; Hokies, Cajins eliminated

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tom Sluby scored a game-high 26 points and Notre Dame hit its first 15 free throws of the second half to score a 65-59 victory over Southwestern Louisiana Monday night to advance to the finals of the 47th National Invitational Tournament.

The Irish, 21-11, will meet Michigan in Wednesday night's championship game. Michigan, 22-10, topped Virginia Tech 78-75 in Monday's other semifinal game.

After letting an 11-point second-half lead slip away, Notre Dame regained control with eight straight points for a 58-53 lead with 2:39 remaining. Sluby scored four of his 16 second-half points in that streak.

After Southwestern Louisiana's Alonzo Allen scored to make it 58-55, Ken Barlow dunked off a pass from Joe Howard and was fouled by the Cajins' Graylin Warner.

Barlow hit the free throw with 1:31 remaining to make it 61-55 and Howard added two free throws on the Irish's next possession to make it 63-55.

Howard's foul shots gave Notre Dame 15 straight from the line after the Irish did not attempt a free throw in the first half.

Notre Dame finished 17-of-21 from the line.

Allen led Southwestern Louisiana, 23-9, with 20 points, 15 of them in the second half. He scored nine points during a 16-6 Cajun tear that pulled them to within one at 38-37 with 11:48 remaining. The Cajins took the lead on a Warner layup which made it 49-48 with 7:39 to go.

After two lead changes, a Sluby basket put Notre Dame ahead to stay 54-53.

The Irish led 24-19 after a backluster first half. Sluby scored 10 points in the half and Notre Dame went in front by hitting its last four shots and scored 10 of the last 14 points of the half.

In the first game, Roy Tarpley hit two free throws for the winning points with 45 seconds remaining, then fired a full-length pass to Antoine Joubert for the final basket.

Tarpley, a 6-foot-10 sophomore center, hit both ends of a one-and-one from the foul line to put Michigan ahead 76-75. With 15 seconds remaining, Virginia Tech's Tim Lewis missed a 15-footer. Tarpley rebounded and gunned a pass to the streaking Joubert for an easy layup for Michigan's three-point margin.

Tarpley, who had 11 rebounds, led the Wolverines with 23 points and Joubert added 17.

Dell Curry scored a game-high 24 points, including 16 in the first half, to help the Hokies to a 44-40 halftime lead. Virginia Tech's big men — Bobby Beecher and Keith Colbert — both picked up their fourth personal foul early in the second half, however, and the Wolverines used a 19-8 streak to take their biggest lead of the game, 67-62, with 8:12 remaining.

There were eight ties and eight lead changes in the second half.

Curry scored four points in a six-point Hokie streak for a 68-67 lead and gave Virginia Tech its final advantage at 75-74 on a 21-foot bomb with 2:05 remaining.

Tarpley was called for traveling on Michigan's next possession, but the Wolverines got the ball back when Virginia Tech's Perry Young missed both free throws with 1:09 remaining. Butch Wade rebounded Young's second miss, giving the Wolverines possession and Tarpley sank the winning free throws after being fouled by Colbert.

Curry, a 6-foot-4 sophomore guard, hit 8-of-13 from the floor to help the Hokies to their halftime lead, although Michigan enjoyed a 26-13 rebounding advantage in the half. Michigan's dominance under the boards became even more of a factor when Beecher and Colbert had to sit out with fouls in the second half.

Young added 18 points and Beecher 15 for the Hokies, who slipped to 21-13. Tim McCormick had 15 points for the Wolverines and Wade added 12.

Bumps and bruises expected during Final Four matchups

BY UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL
The semifinals of the NCAA basketball tournament, which will be held in Seattle next weekend, perhaps more appropriately should be played at the foot of Mt. St. Helens.

It would form the perfect backdrop for a program cover. After all, three of the teams in the Final Four have mountainous names who at any time can erupt like a volcano.

Patrick Ewing of Georgetown, Mel Turpin and Sam Bowie of Kentucky and Akeem Olatunji of Houston are all 7-footers who throw their weight — and elbows — around with considerable authority.

It is very ironic that the fourth team in the semifinals, Virginia, does not have a dominating big man. The Cavaliers had the nation's most dominating college center the past three years in 7-foot-4 Ralph Sampson, but never won the NCAA tournament and reached the Final Four only once.

Sampson has gone on to the Houston Rockets of the NBA, and he is the leading candidate for the rookie of the year.

Virginia's center this year is skinny, 6-foot-11 Otis Polynice, who performed well, if not spectacularly, in the Cavaliers'

50-48 East Regional triumph over Indiana last Saturday. Polynice will be put to the supreme test Saturday when he goes up against Olatunji in the opener of the double-header at the Kingdom.

Since Olatunji has made a decision to stop talking to the press, the Houston center has played two outstanding games for the Cougars.

Olatunji was all-everything Sunday in the Cougars' 68-63 triumph over Wake Forest. He scored 29 points, grabbed 12 rebounds, blocked three shots and changed the arc of countless others.

Wake Forest guard Danny Young was so impressed with Olatunji that he compared him favorably to Sampson, who was voted college basketball's Player of the Year three times.

"I think Akeem is more active on defense than Sampson," said Young. "On offense, I don't see much difference. Both of them have very good offensive moves. Akeem surprised me with some of his moves today. I knew he was a good offensive player. I didn't know he was that good."

The Georgetown-Kentucky contest will pit All-America Ewing against the so-called "Twin Towers" of Kentucky, Turpin and Bowie.

"It'll be the Rockies against the Alps," said Dayton Coach Don Donohue when asked to size up the game. "They might want to go to a four- or five-man (offensive) crew for that game. They might want an NFL crew."

Donohue, whose team lost to the Hoyas 61-49 Sunday in the West Regional championship game, came away extremely impressed with Georgetown's relentless defense.

"They're all over you," said Donohue. "They're a bunch of knockers, and they keep constant pressure on you. For them to have played as many games as they have and the opposition can't shoot 40 percent, I find that an amazing statistic. You look at that and you know you have trouble going in."

Despite Georgetown's imposing lineup, the Hoyas will not have any cake walk to the final Monday night.

Kentucky, too, is very physical and Georgetown Coach John Thompson thinks a key to the game will be how well his forwards, Ralph Dalton (6-11) and Michael Graham (6-9), play against a team as big up front as the Wildcats.

"We'll be against bigger teams," said Thompson, "but our (defensive) pressure will be important, too."

U.S. Olympic Coach Knight getting set for Los Angeles

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dynamic Indiana Coach Bobby Knight envisions one of the greatest booster groups in United States basketball history when he conducts Olympic cage trials.

Knight, who coached the United States Pan American gold medal team in 1979, will lead this country in an Olympic gold quest at Los Angeles this summer against an international invasion that may suit up some of the best foreign players of the decade.

As a college basketball coach, Knight has more than 500 victories. As Hoosier cage mentor, he has fashioned an enviable 247-84 record since Indiana hired him as head coach in 1972.

With all this experience Knight expects to produce an Olympic team he believes will exhibit all the fervor of the 1980 hockey team that captured the gold medal and captivated the American people at Lake Placid.

"This is everybody's basketball team," Knight said Monday when he was named winner of the Kodak-National Invitation Tournament Man of the Year award.

"I want the NBA, NCAA, NAIA and other organizations to think of this as 'our team' and support it. We have an excellent opportunity to bring basketball to a height the world has never seen. This is a sport invented in this country and we're going for a gold medal in an Olympics hosted by this country."

"I think to be an American and represent the U.S. this summer is a tremendous experience for all of us. I want to see everybody gather in Los Angeles and root for us."

Knight said the Olympic team, when it is formed after trials, will play a 6-8 game series against a team of NBA All Stars. He said a July 9 game in Indianapolis Hoosier Dome is expected to draw a capacity crowd of 70,000.

"We're going to follow the 1979 Pan American guideline for the Olympic team," Knight said, "which consisted of three guards, two centers and seven forwards. We want guards who can pick up defensively at three-quarter court. The forwards have to pressure the passers and the post players have got to be better defensively than offensively."

"Everybody has to be able to shoot baskets and rebound. They must be able to interchange positions. In 1979, Kevin McHale (now with the Boston Celtics) was picked as a forward, but played center."

Knight said a committee consisting of regional chairmen John Thompson of Georgetown, Dean Smith of North Carolina, Tom Apke of Colorado (all coaches) and Frank Arnold of Brigham Young, will name 48-54 players who will be invited to the April 16-22 trials in Bloomington, Ind.

The team will be cut to 28-30 players and after a pair of double-headers involving four teams on April 21-22, a 16-man squad will be selected.

"We'll work with these 16 for a specified time and finally reduce the number to 12 for the Olympics," Knight said.

Asked about his philosophy as an Olympic coach, Knight said, "It's never to lose. As a college coach you lose a game and it doesn't hurt, unless it's to Virginia on a Saturday, and you get knocked out of the Final Four."

Yugoslavia, the 1980 Moscow gold medalist, silver medalist Italy and the host United States are the only countries gaining automatic entries for the basketball competition in the 1984 Olympics.

One country without a team for consideration is Nigeria and that means its foremost college basketball son, Houston's second team All-America Akeem Olatunji, will not be able to compete.

Iron curtain' bends slightly, but ruggers top Snake River

By TROY STEINER
Senior Reporter

The snowball effect seems to have hit the BYU rugby team as the Cougars won their sixth consecutive game 16-14 at the Field House against an Idaho-based team, the Snake River.

Monday's game was riddled with mistakes as both teams made their share and the Cougars capitalized on them to score.

The team had their chances to score on several penalty kicks. The Cougars and Snake River hit one.

Mark Ormsby, scored on three of the four Snake River hits.

That could have given them the win, but that could've been the difference in the game.

BYU Coach John Seggar said the final outcome was determined by the team's mistakes. The Snakes committed crucial mistakes that led to Cougars' wins.

One of the errors came when the Cougars were awarded a penalty on the Snake River 40-yard line. The BYU ruggers decided to try a kick and the decision was a good one as the ball went through the uprights and gave the Cougars a 13-7 lead.

The other crucial mistake came when Ormsby, who scored all of the BYU points, fielded a kick and started a counter-attack by kicking the ball down the side-line. The Snake River defender missed the bounce of the ball and Ormsby scooped it up and ran in 25 yards for the only Cougar try of the game.

The Cougars started the scoring off first when Ormsby connected with a penalty kick. The next score was the 25-yard run for the try. The score was 7-0, BYU.

Snake River came right back and scored the first try against the Cougar "iron curtain" defense in this half of the season. Another penalty kick by Ormsby gave the Cougars a 10-7 halftime lead.

The first scoring of the second half was the 40-yard kick by Ormsby. The next score was by Snake River.

The Snakes capitalized on a penalty and the inability of the Cougar defense to set up and scored their second try of the game.

The kick after was missed and that was the story of the game. Later, both teams managed to score on penalty kicks to make the final 16-14.

"I don't enjoy watching us play in these types of games, but that's the way you have to win sometimes," Seggar said. "Penalty-wise, we were terrible."

Ormsby, because of the 16 points he scored, set a new single season scoring record with 131 points so far this season. He has a chance to better it in the five remaining regular season games.

The Snakes were the first team to score a try on the Cougar ruggers this year and the first team to score more than 12 points in one game against them. The Cougars still have outscored their opponents 143-26.

The Cougars are now gearing up for their next contest with a Salt Lake City club-team called Haggis. The game is scheduled for Saturday afternoon at Woods Cross High School.

Four Y track team members set records in Arizona meet

By DOUG FOX
Staff Writer

Four Cougar tracksters set new event records at the Willie Williams Invitational to lead BYU to its second consecutive second-place outdoor finish in Arizona.

Arizona outdistanced BYU and three other schools to win the meet with a score of 103-94. BYU's 65 points shaded third-place finisher California's 63-4. Oregon State posted 42 points to beat out BYU's Western Athletic Conference rival UTEP, which recorded a score of 28 with only a part of their squad.

Junior distance runner Andy DiConti turned in a 3:44.09 to win the 1500 meters. DiConti's time shaved the former meet record of 3:44.36 set three years ago by ex-BYU star Doug Padilla.

DiConti was coming off a fifth-place finish in the mile at the NCAA Indoor Championships in Syracuse, N.Y. The fifth-place finish earned All-America status for DiConti.

Sophomore hammer thrower Mikko Valimaki got BYU off to a good start in the meet's opening event with a meet-record throw of 207-10.

Freshman All-America Soren Tallhem set a meet record en route to a first-place shot put finish with a toss of 63-4-4. The previous shot put mark of 56-3-2 was set last year by teammate Stefan Ferholm. Tallhem holds the longest indoor put recorded in the nation this year at 67-7.

Tallhem had also planned to compete in the javelin but a pulled muscle forced him out of the event.

Ferholm became the fourth Cougar to set a meet record when he threw the discus 203-2. Ferholm's throw was nearly 10 feet beyond the old record.

BYU was competing in Arizona for the second week in a row. Last week the Cougars took second in Tempe, Ariz., finishing behind host Arizona State. Oklahoma took third in the meet.

"You could describe our overall performance as better than the week before," said BYU Coach Clarence Robinson. "In just a period of one week, you could see we are improving and getting the feel of outdoor competition."

BYU performed Saturday without the services of All-America distance ace Ed Eyston who was in New York running in the 12th World Cross Country Championships. Eyston finished sixth with a time of 33:46.

This was Eyston's third appearance at the World Championships. Competing on the junior level in 1980 Eyston won the bronze medal with a third-place finish.

softball team wins tourney

The BYU women's softball team led to southern Utah on Friday and came home with the championship trophy from the Dixie Invitational.

The Cougars played and won four games Saturday to take the top spot in the elimination tournament.

BYU was proud of their team to be able to win four games in one day," said BYU Coach Chris Linder. "We had a little trouble starting in the pool-play games, but when the tournament started came together."

The Cougars came up with two wins in four games in Friday's play. BYU downed Snow College 5-4 and Utah Technical College 12-0, and lost to the Coleman Spikers 9-4 and Bevo, a Salt Lake City team, 5-3.

But in tournament games, BYU won four straight to take the title.

"Our pitching was excellent, and our defense did a great job," Linder said.

The Cougars gave up only six runs in the four games. In the first matchup, pitcher Cindy Brown shut out the College of Eastern Utah 10-0.

Cathy Bingham gave up only one run and BYU downed Coveys, a St. George team, 3-1 in the second round. Brown then pitched up her second win of the day, pitching the Cougars to a 3-2 win over Coleman.

In the championship game, BYU overwhelmed the Bountiful Blazers 13-3 behind Bingham's pitching.

Karie Tollestrup, a BYU senior, batted .474 and stole eight bases in tournament play. Freshman Kathy Bean hit .333.

The Cougars, 11-7 on the season, are at Snow College today. They open their home season Friday against the same Snow squad.

bowling teams invited to finals

BYU men's and women's bowling teams been invited by special invitation to compete in the finals of the National Collegiate Bowling Championships that are scheduled for 5-6 in Denver.

The Cougars received the invitation because of excellent showing at the regional tournament this year.

This is the final roll-off in preparation for the final finals," said BYU Coach Shafter Bown. "We are excited and consider this an honor and a goal for BYU to compete in this prestigious championship tournament."

The Cougars will have an opportunity to compete at Wichita State, which is ranked first in the nation.

Committee picks Bown

After Bown, Ernest L. Wilkinson Center's Center Manager and bowling team coach, was selected by the National Collegiate Bowling Committee to serve as a Sectional Coordinator for the National Collegiate Bowling Championships.

The final tournament that is scheduled for April in Denver.

Bown is excited about this assignment and feel that the Committee is working hard to promoting bowling on the college campuses as an NCAA sport. Bown said, "There will be many changes in place in the near future."

Bown also said the BYU bowling teams are gaining recognition for their performances.

The BYU bowling teams have gained a reputation the years as being very competitive and received national recognition on the collegiate gig women in second track meet

The BYU women's team traveled to Phoenix, Ariz., on Saturday and came away with third place in the Willie Williams Invitational.

The Cougars finished behind the host Arizona State Wildcats.

The team members did in several strong performances, including Julie Norton's 168-3 in the discus. Not to mention Norton grab place in the event, she also qualified for NCAA.

Norton also placed in the shot put with a toss of 48-7-4. Cougar American Julie Norton placed second in the shot and the team swept the discus at with Athena as third-place finisher.

The team is really trying to grow and the quality we've seen all along they've said BYU Coach John Seggar.

Joely Jones came in the triple jump the first time. The native won the 100 with a leap of 36-4. Her teammate Sheri Cole placed third.

The 3,000-meter race, BYU's Janelle placed second. Jocelyn Whitehead placed fourth. Alisha Byrnes grabbed second in the 1,500-meter run.

The 400-meter race, the BYU team of Elaine Hayne, Elaine Bragg, and Cathy Chipman placed fourth.

The Cougars finished the meet with 147 points, only four shy of place Arizona's 151 points. Minnesota was behind the leaders with 75 points, followed by Texas-El Paso in fourth and Oregon State in fifth.

SYNERGY IS: JOINT VENTURE

Just ask this American Synergy representative. Jon Remington earned over $28,000 last summer with Synergy. And that was his first year. Jon will be back for more this summer. So will many more college students.

American Synergy is an established energy products company (insulation and more) based in Provo, but working primarily in California. That's because the California utility companies have made the purchase of our products financially attractive for consumers.

As a result, it's also financially attractive for American Synergy representatives. Very attractive. Our reps will make between $7,000 and $15,000 in 16 weeks this summer. Some, like Jon Remington, will make considerably more than that.

Actually, what we offer is more of a service opportunity than a sales job. The reason is simple. People are already receptive to our top-notch products. They recognize the need for them. So, you win big, and your customers win big.

But the benefits aren't just financial. You see, American Synergy is a subsidiary of Eagle Systems International, the company that wrote the book on effective summer job training.

In fact, the know-how and career skills we'll teach you are often more valuable than your earnings. At least that's what past employees say. (In many instances, our training was the key to a very appealing job upon graduation.)

However, the most immediate and tangible reward is the money and the freedom it creates. What you earn can easily support you all next year. In fine style.

But we won't force the job on you. There are plenty of interested people without doing that.

If you'd like to be part of that group, come attend a brief—and casual—meeting this Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the address shown below. Or call Gary Laney, 225-9000.

Three honored at Lamanite dinner

By HEIDI BETHERS
Staff Writer

Many students can recall a few people who have been influential in shaping their lives. The Multicultural Office and others paid tribute to three individuals who have greatly contributed to the lives of BYU Lamanite students Friday.

When reflecting back on the Lamanite programs on campus, the name Jane "Janie" Thompson is sure to pop up. Thompson, the founder and director of the Lamanite Generation, was one of the three honored at the Lamanite banquet. She will retire as director to attend to other university duties following the group's European tour this summer.

"The Lamanite Generation actually began as a dream of Dale Tingey, a former president of the Southwest Indian Mission," she said. In 1971, at his request, Thompson worked up a program that featured predominantly Indian talent. Thompson organized the group and rode with the students in the back of a pickup truck to tour for two months.

"John Kinnear, who was then head of BYU's University Programs, saw the show, and the group became part of the BYU performing groups in the fall of 1971," Thompson said.

Although the Lamanite Generation had a slow start due to the limited number of talented Indian students available, the group has been growing in both number and notoriety under her direction.

International tours

Earliest performances were on Indian reservations in the Southwest. Later, tours reached throughout the United States, Canada, Mexico, Central and South America, Eastern and Western Europe, Scandinavia, Taiwan, the Philippines, Hong Kong and the People's Republic of China.

Approximately four years ago, Polynesian and Latin students joined with the Indians to perform around the world. "Once the other Lamanites came in, things really took off," Thompson said. "They show a great love of unity and equality to the world."

The group presently contains 30 performers, 10 from each Lamanite group.

Nine people present awards and other presents to Thompson to show their appreciation and love to her. These nine people represented such groups as the Department of Music, the Multicultural Office, Lamanite students, Lamanite Generation alumni and current performers, the Multicultural Education Department and the Navajo tribe.

Song salute

"You mean more to us than words can ever say," are the words Michael Campbell, Lamanite Week co-chairman, sang in a song saluting Thompson.

Thompson demonstrated her directing power and enthusiasm as she led the audience in two songs. The first song depicted the history of the "Lamanite Generation." The second song expressed thanks in Spanish, Hawaiian and Sioux to include the three Lamanite groups represented throughout the week.

Thompson said in her closing remarks, "I've been crying two days just thinking about this. I'm very touched."

Two others were also honored at the Friday banquet.

Owen C. Bennion, a professor in multicultural education, will retire in April after teaching for 22 years at BYU. Bennion was recognized for his contributions, his dedication, his example and for the friendship and love he has shown for both his work and his Indian students.

"I hate to use the trite expression, but I've learned to love these Indians. I'm going to miss them," he said after telling the audience of two spiritual experiences he had with the Lamanite students.

Janie Thompson, director of the Lamanite Generation, displays a plaque of appreciation given to her Friday night. Thompson will retire after the group's European tour this summer.

Children's plays win awards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tony Awards won't be going to plays like "Bill," "It's a Dog's Life, Sydney" and "The Lucky One," but their young authors may be tomorrow's Eugene O'Neills.

The Children's Radio Theater annually challenges the creativity of the nation's youth with a play writing contest, won this year by scripts that render ordinary, everyday events into spectacular fantasy.

Imagine how a dollar bill ("Bill") must feel when crumpled in a wallet. Or why a dog really wags his tail — canine title character "Sydney" said it's a manifestation of high blood pressure.

Four youngsters, from among hundreds of budding playwrights, won this year's "Henny Penny Playwriting Contest." Their plays will be staged and broadcast live from the Kennedy Center this spring by the Children's Radio Theater's troupe of actors.

The 1984 winners are Cindy Buchanan, 12, LaPlata, Md., ("It's a Dog's Life, Sydney"); Chris and Jason Freitag, 11 and 14, Valparaiso, Ind., ("The Lucky One" and "Bill"); and Thomas Dickson, 15, Upper Marlboro, Md., ("The Yankee and the Georgian Witch").

The plays will be produced jointly by National Public Radio Theater and the John F. Kennedy Center of Performing Arts Program for Children and Youth.

The winning scripts comment on human nature at its best and worst.

"The Lucky One" raises the issue of wildlife preservation; a boy struggles with bureaucratic red tape to save a bird species. His efforts are unsuccessful.

Mask Club to present five productions today

Mask Club will feature an additional production today. All performances will be in the Nelke Experimental Theater, HFAC.

The original one-act play, "Heartlight," by Scott Bronson, will be presented at 12:10 p.m. The comedy is directed by Blaine A. Mero, a junior from Las Vegas, Nev., majoring in communications.

A humorous comedy by a current British playwright will be directed by Annette Self, a senior from Upper Marlboro, Md., majoring in English, at 2:10 p.m.

The additional play will be performed at 2:10 p.m. Melinda Wood, a senior from Oregon, majoring in directing, will direct a condensation of a Broadway show.

An adaptation of a classic children's fairy tale will be directed by Chris Skillings, a sophomore from Auburn, Calif., majoring in theater, at 3:10 p.m.

The final play, a comedy, will be directed by Charles Aleson, a senior from Las Vegas, Nev., majoring in theater, at 4:10 p.m.

Each performance will be followed by a discussion between the audience, actors and director. All performances are free, and anyone may attend.

"Most of the kids have great ideas," said Doris Indyke, one of the founders of the Children's Radio Theater. "But it's those who follow through with the idea, structure the play well, develop their subject . . . those are the kind of scripts that win."

One of this year's winning scripts is about the life of a dollar bill. "That's not the first time we have gotten a script about that same topic," said Indyke. To trace the life of the dollar named "Bill," playwright Jason Freitag, 14, went so far as to research the printing process and average life span of a dollar.

Joan Bellamy, David Thompson and Indyke created the Children's Radio Theater in 1977. It currently is broadcast on 100 public radio affiliates.

The contest, which has won several prestigious awards including a George Foster Peabody, was begun a year later to attract original material from listeners.

With advertising in grade school publications and on CRT's Saturday morning program, the contest attracted more than 1,000 scripts this year from children age 7 to 15 from 42 states and Canada.

The four winners will come to Washington to assist in the production of their plays, appear on NBC's "Today" program, and be interviewed on Voice of America.

The scripts are judged by a panel of media producers, teachers, playwrights and past contest winners.

"Many factors are judged," Indyke said, "but the main thing we look for is subject matter. Is it clearly something that is important to the author; is it clever, original, imaginative? Is there a sense of humor?"

A MAN IS WHAT HE THINKS ABOUT ...

... We become what we think about. Think about the following:

... College students in the Living Scriptures three year summer employment program averages over $15,000 per summer, several of our second, third, and fourth-year representatives earned over $40,000. Our top second year representative earned over $60,000 in thirteen weeks.

These figures become even higher when you add in the thousands of dollars in bonuses you will earn this summer. Bonuses such as a weeks vacation to Cancun, Mexico (with the most beautiful beaches in the world and the great Book of Mormon ruins) color TV's, VCR's, microwaves, stereos, and much more.

This is all believable when you consider the Living Scriptures professional training program. Before you start your summer work you'll be given an intensive one week training course at the luxurious Salt Lake City Marriott. At this all expense paid sales school you'll be taught sales techniques, motivation, and personal development from some of the top in the world. Then the most important training is continued in the field with highly skilled sales supervisors who will teach you proven methods that will insure your success.

We have the knowledge, the products and the system. ... If you have the belief.

For more information on the Living Scriptures opportunity join us for an interesting fact filled movie and presentation.

Ballroom dancers to contend Saturday for championships

By PAM PARKS
Staff Writer

BYU International Ballroom championships will be Saturday in LWC ballroom. Preliminary will begin at 9 a.m. with finals at 1 p.m. Doors will open at 6:30 p.m.

Tickets can be purchased at 112 RB the door Saturday. Reserved seating is available, and competitors say the ticket price. However, there is no entry fee charged for competitors.

Ball is sponsored by the BYU Department of Dance and the BYU International Ballroom Dance Company. The event will include dance competitions, general dancing for the top three in each category.

Evening is something that can be enjoyed by participants and spectators," said Tom Murdock, BYU International Ballroom Dance Company director.

BYU Ballroom Dance Company will perform during one of the classes. Special guests will be the 1983 Dance Champions, Nicholas and Debbie Avalos.

Event is originally from England and was attended by the World Ten and Debbie Avalos.

Dance Championships in Germany and will perform a floorshow of five Latin American dances.

The championships are open to beginning and advanced dancers providing that participants are not paid dancers, said Murdock.

The championships include 13 categories based on three levels: PE 180, beginning dance; PE 250, intermediate; and PE 380, advanced.

PE 180 dancers will compete in the Triple Swing while PE 250 dancers will compete in the Cha Cha. PE 380 dancers will compete in the New York Hustle.

The Open Cabaret division will be open to beginning dancers who have not taken a class above PE 180, Murdock said. The Cabaret spotlights each couple individually. Each couple selects its own music, choreography and costuming.

Medals will be awarded to the top three couples in each category; the fourth, fifth and sixth place couples will receive ribbons in each category.

"This is the 10th year of the championships, and it is a much larger event than in the past," Murdock said.

More than 300 competitors will enter dance categories from novice through championship events, Murdock said.

Fitness programs vary

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Saving money should not be the issue in the hunt for the perfect fitness program — but trying not to waste it should.

"There's a ton of gadgets around. People will buy them, use them for a month or two and toss them in their drawer," said Dr. Donald Kirkendall, a physiologist at the Cleveland Clinic's sports medicine department. "I shrug my shoulders and laugh that people buy this stuff and believe in it."

Kirkendall said it takes four to six months for the average sedentary human to get back in shape, and the most important part of any exercise program is sticking to it.

"For the most part, it's advantageous to do it by yourself, because you don't have to go anywhere," he said. "One of the big reasons people stop is they don't want to go somewhere to exercise."

Anyone who wants to exercise, be it in front of the television or at a fancy health spa, should make one big investment, Kirkendall said — a visit to the doctor.

People over the age of 35 also should take an exercise test, available through most cardiologists and some general practitioners, that measures the body's abilities in motion.

"Most physicals are just resting physicals," he said. "Most doctors are not trained in how to get people in better shape. Find someone who knows a little bit about exercise."

Such experts can be found at university-run adult fitness programs that cost about $150 per year plus the cost of the exercise tests, some spas and fitness clubs, and the ever-popular YMCA or YWCA. Expert advice, compared with the cost of poor health, is relatively inexpensive, he said.

However, some health spas can cost dearly, and that is where the aspiring fitness buff should be careful. The average price is about $15 to $30 per month, plus an initiation fee, he said.

But most spas are simply geared to signing up new members, Kirkendall said.

"If all the people who are members showed up, you wouldn't have room to work out," he said.

Find out from people who already belong how knowledgeable and accessible the staff is, he said. Often staffs are very helpful to new members, "but once you're in there you have to go hunting."

Just as important as a good staff is a variety of activities. A good spa has everything from a pool to dance classes to weight rooms, he said. "The wider the variety, the more interest there's going to be."

film project gives on-the-job training

By KAREN NAMBA
Staff Writer

A crowd of people gathered around a crawling man while a sack of gravel spilled onto the ground. The group of observers on one would lead a camera and crew from Theater and Cinematic Arts, intent pressed forward to film for a class movie project titled "The Dusk."

Approximately 15 students from Karr's ThCa 376R class, extended with acting, directing, up, production and sound, in a on class project Wednesday.

The film is a final project for the said Karr. "We all put the together."

unusual script for "Out of the begins with a young man, who comes home and notices out door is open. As he enters house, he sees that the front room and discovers his wife, Kate, floor.

he, who was brutally beaten, has bruises and cuts on her face, but is still alive. Lance calls for an ambulance when he hears the assailant still in the house. The attacker, Alan, attempts to sneak away, but flees when Lance sees him. As both men run out the door, Alan trips and Lance leaps on him.

A passing student helps out by holding Alan while Lance calls the police. However, Alan dissolves into thin air, and the camera focuses on Alan who is in a spaceship.

Shooting the entire sequence took approximately five hours, but the film will run only about five minutes by the time editing is completed, said production manager Linda Naumann, a senior from Brigham City, Utah, majoring in motion pictures and television acting.

"This project taught me how the camera and sound systems work," said Suzanne Kimball, a junior from Farmington, Utah, majoring in motion picture and television writing.

"I had to study angles, sequence shots and know how it would look on film," Kimball said.

"I had to learn how to write," she said. "There was one basic idea for the script, but each scene was written by each director."
